Portmeirion*

Portmeirion is a magical village situated in North Wales. A vision brought to life by the somewhat eccentric Clough Williams Ellis. Clough was in the habit of buying old buildings or interesting parts of buildings, and having acquired quite a collection he decided to reconstruct them. In his search for a suitable site he was offered a piece of land in North Wales by his Uncle. This was the beginning of the Portmeirion Village. Famously used in the surreal 1960s TV series "The Prisoner", where Patrick McGoochan's character number 6 was held prisoner. Part of the fun of visiting the village is seeing how Clough's imagination allowed him to reconstruct parts of the buildings which just fit into the village. A place once visited never forgotten.
